Comments of the WG Members

J. De Zwaan.	I doubt whether we should make big changes. Apparently the present modalities, although not ideal, are workable. Therefore only minor – practical – amendments are advisable (for example starting hours of classes, duration of classes). On the other hand it is indicated to provide for some more free days, in order to allow students to do some more reflection work at home. Therefore the Third variant seems to be the most appropriate. The ESI management is invited to give more clarifications as to the budgetary estimations.
A. Nabokoff.	No significant change is needed as it proved to work. One should nevertheless envisage to somehow alleviate the burden of the students. So in principle 3 rd option. 2 possibilities can be used combinely: 1. Not replacing immediately a cancelled lesson by substituting another professor. 2. If MGIMO thinks that it is feasible and if the Gov. Board agrees, test for a limited period: one day per month (of every 2 months) allocated to day lessons in replacement of some evening classes.

Master's programme Working with small groups

Costs include fees to professors on the basis of €101,82 per 1 academic hour

Current Activity (2009-2010)	Options			Proposals of the Working Group
For this year this sort of an activity is not envisaged, but it is possible to carry on this activity by redistributing funds which arise from savings incurred because of decrease of payments for lectures. Expenses for working with small groups are not included in the budget. Nevertheless the	1st option: It is provided that working with small groups will start with the 2 nd semester, though it is planned to use such type of work in the 1 st semester as well. The classes may be held by the lecturer himself, or by tutors and young teachers. It is possible in the 1 st semester to divide students into groups by 15-20 people in each group (6 groups). Additional expenses for the 1 st	2nd option: We intensify the raise and increase twice, as compare to the 1 st option. Consequently the expenses will double.	3rd option: We gradually proceed to working with small group taking into consideration acquired experience. We do this twice slower than it is foreseen in the 1 st option. Therefore additional financial burden will be twice smaller in comparison to the 1 st option In the first semester it's possible to divide students into 3 groups.	The members of the WG had a general discussion of this issue. During the meeting positions have not been formulated.

budget reserves the opportunity for such a maneuver at the expense of giving students more free days. The amounts saved within these days will allow changing the budget split.	semester: 120 academ. hrs. * €101,82 = €12218,4 For the 2nd semester – groups by 10-15 people (13 groups). Additioanl expenses for the 2nd semester: 260 academ.hrs * €101,82 = €26473,2 Taking into account the high standards of teaching, it's necessary for young tutors not only to participate in the current work of the ESI but to have an opportunity to pass the professional training in the College of Europe, or other universities with the similar work experience. It will require increasing of travel allowances and for one person it will be: Transport expences - €700 Daily allowance - €200 * 7 days= €1400 Total amount for 1 person €100 Annual expenses €38 692 Total financing for 3 years €16 076	Annual expenses (€38 692 * 2) €77 384 Total financing for 3 years €32 152	Additional financing for the 1st semester (3 groups): 60 academ.hrs. * €101,82 = €6109 Additional financing for the 2nd semester (6 groups): 260 academ.hrs. * €101,82 = €3236 Annual expenses €19 345 Total financing for 3 years €58 035

J. De Zwaan	In principle this is a good idea. However, if huge financial consequences are connected to the implementation of the suggestion –that is the case when a (big) number of new staff members has to be recruited- then we should be reluctant. The question arises whether the realization of these ideas should not better be postponed. An additional problem being that when new lecturers have to be recruited, they need time in order to be fully prepared to give lectures. Also in this respect we can only proceed gradually. For the moment the best solution seems to be to ask the lecturers themselves to –periodically- provide their lectures twice, for groups halve the size compared to the situation now. Another option is to establish quantative limits –a sort of ‘numerus fixus’- as to the number of students to be admitted. The ESI Management is invited to give clarifications as to: - the two options proposed, and

the budgetary estimations concerned.

J. De Zwaan As discussed during the Working Group meeting of 27 October, this idea is difficult to achieve and, at any rate, very costly.

Therefore it is indicated to drop this suggestion for the immediate future

J. De Zwaan	There was a tendency in favor of a modest and gradual approach of this matter. The ESI management is invited to give clarifications as to modalities of implementation and the budgetary estimations concerned.
A. Nabokoff	Good idea. Fixed number per year should be provided, per ex. 8 students invited in year 1, 15 in year 2 and 20 in year 3.

Master's programme Summer-time language courses for students

In view of the wide usage of a foreign language when holding classes, it would be optimal to hold 3-week courses for all applicants. It would prepare them for classes in foreign languages conducted by foreign professors. The costs will consist of fees to language teachers. Costs of amortization, renting halls and auditoriums, usage of computer equipment are not indicated etc. are not indicated here.

J. De Zwaan	This is certainly a good idea. However, the question arises why the ESI should pay for it. Would it not be feasible to ask the students themselves to pay (at least a part of) the overall costs?

J. De Zwaan	This certainly is a good idea. In order to attract foreign students it is indicated to concentrate on shorter courses. The format could also be the one of summer schools. In order to make the courses attractive for foreign students the curriculum should include more Russian and/or comparative elements (law, economics, political sciences). The question arises whether the foreign students are able to pay an entrance fee or, at least, a part of the overall costs. Here also does exist a relationship with the Regional strategy (see here under). The ESI Management is invited to give clarifications as to the budgetary estimations.

Education at the ESI Short-term courses

It is planned to hold courses on a monthly basis. There might be 3 options.

Expenses will include:

- daily allowances to foreign lecturers: 3 persons. * €200 per day
- remunerations of transportation and visa expenses to foreign lecturers– 3 persons. * €700
- simultaneous interpretation 24 academ.hrs. * €108,61

Comments of the WG Members

J. De Zwaan	Because short-term courses do in principle fall outside the scope of the core business of ESI –the organization of Master Programs- such short courses should be paid courses. Therefore an entry fee seems to be reasonable. Interested circles may be governmental ministries or bodies, business, NGO’s, universities etc. To the extent short-term courses will become a success, and will result in extra resources for the ESI, it can be envisaged to recruit some new staff members. It would be wise to do some preliminary marketing research on this topic. On the other hand, because this kind of courses is already provided by ESI for some time, it may be assumed that there is indeed a need respectively a ‘market’ to offer short term courses. The ESI Management is invited to give clarifications as to the budgetary estimations.
A. Nabokoff	Agree with J .De Zwaan

Research Activity

According to the Strategy, it is supposed to start working on setting up a Scientific Research Institute for young researches in 2010. It will require working out and authorization of regulations, signing contracts, solving the issue of works’ effectiveness evaluation. Presumably, the main amounts, necessary for accommodation and doing researches in Moscow, may be paid after the ESI will get into possession a book, manual, textbook or report in Russian and in one of the EU working languages and a positive evaluation of those by the appropriate committee of the Governing Board. That is why the results of the competition should be finalized in 2010-2011 – in order to allow the researcher-competition winner to start working since 2011.

For each scientific & research project with a 3-month duration the amount of €15 000 should be allocated. Costs for publishing of scientific works in Russian and in one of the EU working languages will amount to €34800.

Current Activity (2009-2010)	Options			Proposals of the Working Group
	1st option: It looks reasonable not to go beyond one researcher for the beginning. After the analyses it would be possible to announce competition for 3 – 4 researchers	2nd option: To intensify works and in order to have a wider opportunity for choice - to take 3 researchers at a time, and after the analyses of results - to enroll on a regular basis.	3rd option: To get grants for research purposes; not to provide expenses for these purposes in cost estimate, as far as in the crisis conditions the situation is not clear.	This issue has not been discussed during the meeting.

J. De Zwaan	This is an interesting subject matter. On the other hand it seems a bit early to start this kind of complementary activities. Furthermore the question arises whether a marketing study has been undertaken to see for example whether many students are interested to do research. There is also the question of who should supervise these research activities. For the moment it seems there is not enough staff people in Moscow available to act as a supervisor. This may be different when projects between universities will be started. In such a case, however, the question arises why ESI should pay for that. The ESI Management is invited to give clarifications as to the budgetary estimations.

The strategy provides for possible increasing of the number of tutors up to 20 people, and taking on the 3rd Deputy Director since 2010. He will be in charge of the Development department of ESI. Such a department would be created by analogy with the acting one of the College of Europe.

J. De Zwaan	The reference is to extra staff (tutors) and a third Deputy Director. As to extra staff it is logic that, after a number of successful years, the number of staff will be slightly increased. However, the increase should be a modest one, also because of the budgetary consequences. As to the third Deputy Director firstly the question arises who is at present the 'second' Deputy Director (it is presumed that Tamara Shashikhina is the 'first' Deputy Director). As to the procedure it seems logic that the Governing Board should have a say in the question who to appoint as Deputy Director. As discussed and approved at the meeting of the Governing Board of 27 October, if there will be a new position as Deputy Director, this position should in principle be reserved for an EU national. The modalities and conditions for such a new position respectively the recruitment procedure concerned still have to be established. It is understood that the person concerned will take the development strategy portfolio. The ESI Management is invited to give clarifications as to the budgetary estimations.

J. De Zwaan	Certainly useful, however why should ESI pay for the creation of such an association? A first start could be to develop a website for alumni. Therefore a modest start is indicated. More particularly there is no need for regular meetings (second and third option). For the moment a single activity per year could suffice (first option). The ESI Management is invited to give clarifications as to the budgetary estimations.

J. De Zwaan	Why, what and how? What are the objectives? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Spreading of knowledge regarding European studies over the whole territory of the Russian Federation (and not only in Moscow). - In so far the regional strategy is in conformity of the overall objectives of the ESI. - cooperation with universities in the regions, and education for the lecturers of these regional universities It is the intention to establish various centers for European Studies also outside Moscow, thus elsewhere in the Russian Federation? Who are the lecturers? The ones of Moscow (MGIMO/ESI) or also those of the regional universities concerned? The best approach would be that also 'regional' lecturers can be involved. The format of short term courses is indicated, at least for a first period. More particularly the format could be the one of summer schools. All these elements demonstrate that here does exist a relationship with the question how to attract foreign students and foreign lecturers for ESI activities. See for this subject matter also my note of 15 February 2009 (for good order annexed to this note) The ESI Management is invited to reflect about these questions, to present proposals and to give clarifications as to the budgetary estimations.

Cost of equipment and furniture

Expenses for upgrading computer hardware and furniture purchases are not provided – in contradiction to the practices of similar projects implementation. It means that the Russian side will bear all these costs. It would be fair and reasonable to foresee financing for repairing and renewal of hardware on the part of European side as.

Current Activity (2009-2010)	Options			Proposals of the Working Group
It is planned to spend on main ESI needs	1st option: The minimum possible financing for these purposes (cost of maintenance and repair of existing hardware & acquiring of expendables for it)	2nd option: The financing, which would modestly cover the essential ESI needs (costs of maintenance of existing hardware, purchasing of expendables, acquiring of the new equipment to replace the disabled ones)	3rd option: In order to be up to standards of the leading institutions, it is necessary to foresee expenses for maintenance and upgrade of existing hardware in case of necessity; for additional equipping of ESI library with furniture and equipment; for additional equipping of lecture-rooms with furniture, computers & language laboratory equipment, etc.	This issue has not been discussed in detail during the meeting.
